

Department of Obstetrics & Gynecology - Geographic Full Time and Clinical Faculty Since 1922

The early years

Though we do not have records from the early days of the Department of Obstetrics & Gynecology at the University of Alberta, reports by two past department chairs, Dr. J. Ross Vant and Dr. Thomas Nelson, provide us with the identities of some of the early faculty members.

It is important to remember that there was no formal recognition of obstetrics & gynecology in the early years. The "pioneers" of our specialty were men (and later, women) who took upon themselves the responsibility of providing special care to women in need.

It is their spirit of altruism, adventure and perseverance that formed the basis of our specialty. It is upon their shoulders that we can now gaze upon the truly amazing advances that have occurred and resulted in the marked improvement in women's health. Our apologies for any physicians we may have unintentionally missed.

The "founding" department members were Dr. L. C. Conn, Dr. J. O. Baker and Dr. Allan Day. They were joined in 1932 by Dr. J. Ross Vant. In the next decade, Dr. T. Roy Clarke, Dr. Eby B. Quehl, Dr. A. Havrelock MacLennan and Dr. Ronald Horner worked at the University Hospital, with the latter two taking leave to join the services during the Second World War.

Dr. Margaret M. Hutton joined the department sometime during the mid-1940s. In the late 1940s, Dr. Steve Parlee and Dr. Doug Ritchie joined the department.

The past 50 years

Bold typeface indicates GFT (geographic full time) faculty. The dates reflect the dates of university appointments and may not coincide precisely with the physicians' actual time in active clinical practice in Edmonton.
